"Alone we can do so little; together we can do so much." Helen Keller

Mission Statement: Our mission is to advance equity for women and girls through advocacy, education, and research. AAUW empowers all women and girls to reach their highest potential.

LOOKING AHEAD

From President, Pamela Oviedo

As the year draws to a close, the holiday season reminds us of the importance of supporting one another and giving back to make a meaningful difference in the lives of others. Our branch can take pride in knowing that we have impacted our community through initiatives like the NC Resolves Campaign and by donating canned goods to those in need.

Looking ahead, our objective for the coming year is to achieve 5-star branch status. To reach this milestone, we plan to host an engaging lifelong learning workshop, increase our membership, and implement impactful programs that support women and girls in higher education. We will also partner with STEM professionals to conduct a mini-STEM camp and organize a silent auction scholarship ball to benefit a student entering college. These initiatives will position us to meet the criteria for becoming a 5-STAR branch.

I am grateful to have the opportunity to be in this branch. Your time, energy, and support have made a real difference in advancing education, equity, and opportunity for women and girls.

Have a wonderful holiday and a prosperous New Year!

SAVE THE DATE: APRIL 17-18, 2025

The AAUW Charlotte branch is hosting the AAUW North Carolina Annual Meeting/Spring Conference 2026!

This is exciting. Please plan to join us as this will be the first face-to-face conference since the pandemic. It is certainly one of the best opportunities to greet each of our fellow members face-to-face while we learn, build relationships, and just have fun together. Details will follow—from both the Charlotte chapter and the State AAUW Board members. Look for information in your digital communication and the Charlotte newsletter. The State Board members plan to share more details about this conference in a supplemental issue of Connect.

PUBLIC POLICY BRIEFS

From Lucille Howard

AAUW-US Advocacy

Last month, the Trump administration escalated its effort to dismantle the U.S. Department of Education (ED). On November 18, ED announced six “partnerships” moving the day-to-day work of major K-12 and higher education programs to other agencies, after slashing staff across the Department. This is not routine reorganization. It threatens students’ civil rights and access to opportunity. We need your voice now.

Write to your members of Congress now to intervene and ensure the Department of Education can fulfill its responsibilities to students.

AAUW-NC

The AAUW's new strategic plan for 2025 focuses on advancing equity for women and girls through three key priorities: funding higher education, removing barriers to success, and strengthening AAUW's reach.

Charlotte Area AAUW

Advocacy continues for full funding of education in North Carolina. Members are signing petitions, writing post cards to legislators and sending as many messages as possible to NC Senators and Representatives across the state urging that they pass a budget and put public money into public schools.

NOVEMBER FOOD DRIVE

The November Food Drive was a success!

Our members enjoyed a very nice luncheon at Leroy Fox restaurant and brought food to share with those in need.

Our President, Pamela Oviedo, delivered the food to the Mathews Help Center.

Thank you for your generous donations.

Please Welcome Our New Members

Let me introduce our two newest members, Adlore “Addi” Casseus and Jacqueline Jenkins.

Ph.D. Candidate | Scholar, Writer, and Leadership Coach | Founder of Ascend Revenue Group & The Empress Addi Podcast

Adlore “Addi” Casseus is a dynamic scholar, writer, and leadership coach whose work bridges education, culture, and consciousness. A Ph.D. candidate in Leadership and Change at Antioch University, her research explores epistemic justice and decolonizing knowledge through Haitian Vodou as an epistemological framework—reframing ancestral, spiritual, and communal ways of knowing as legitimate sources of wisdom and leadership.

Professionally, Addi has served as Director of Humanities Pathway Partnerships at Miami Dade College, Strategic Account Manager at DeVry University, and Executive Coach and Founder of Ascend Revenue Group, where she empowers visionary entrepreneurs and teams through empathy-driven leadership and communication frameworks. Her signature program, The Ascend Method™, integrates mindful strategy, conscious sales, and transformational leadership.

A passionate storyteller and communicator, Addi is also the creator and host of *The Empress Addi Podcast—a thought-provoking platform centering Black women’s voices, spirituality, and the intersections of culture, identity, and healing. Her writing, which spans essays, blog features, and academic publications, examines liberation, authenticity, and the power of narrative to inspire social change.

Beyond her professional and academic pursuits, Addi is deeply committed to community service, mentorship, and cultural preservation. She is an active member of the Charlotte Professional Haitian Network (CHPN), where she supports professional development initiatives within the Haitian diaspora And The Order of the Eastern Star. Her broader mission is to cultivate spaces—scholarly, spiritual, and entrepreneurial—where women can lead with wholeness, purpose, and power.

Addi believes that women’s voices are catalysts for transformation. Through her research, leadership, and creative expression, she continues to advance the principles that AAUW stands for: equity, education, and empowerment for all women and girls.

Career & Technical Education - Ms. Jenkins

Introduction:

Hello, my name is Jacqueline Jenkins and I have been teaching at South Mecklenburg High School for approx. 11 years. I am originally from New Jersey and moved to Charlotte in 2008 from Orlando, Florida where I graduated from the University of Central Florida with a B.S. degree in Liberal Arts. I also earned a Master's of Secondary Education degree from Grand Canyon University. Teaching has always been my passion and I love sharing my knowledge with others. I consider myself a lifelong learner always seeking new ideas, challenges and experiences. During leisure times I like to cook new recipes, put together lego with my grandson, and spend time with friends and family. My favorite quote is:

Education is the most powerful weapon which you can use to change the world.

Nelson Mandela

QUEEN THOMPSON: Living a Powerful Legacy

Queen Thompson has been a member of the AAUW Charlotte branch for many years and was recently featured in the East Charlotte Quarterly by Salem Macknee.

Queen Thompson's address on Lawrence Orr Road in east Charlotte holds a wealth of family history and Charlotte history. Thompson, 79, is one of the oldest surviving grandchildren of Orr, a strong advocate of education and land ownership for Black people in the area. An elementary school bears his name and a placemaking grant from the city will feature Lawrence Orr in a local history display planned at Albemarle and Farm Pond roads. To learn more about him, look for a film on YouTube, "Lawrence Orr: Chronicle of a Life Fulfilled."

Thompson grew up on Sharon Amity Road near Venedale, which she calls the Hezekiah Alexander property after a slave owner who bought her ancestor Bet, age 5, for his wife. Thompson worked in other states and in Charlotte as a teacher, counselor, and social worker.

Her husband, Melvin, retired from the Air Force. In 1983 the couple moved to the house on Lawrence Orr Road, neighbor to relatives who also own houses on the family land. For several years, Thompson portrayed a slave in re-enactments at Rosedale Plantation. These days she writes about the legacy of slavery and about growing up Black in east Charlotte, and stays active in community affairs.
